Make the % roll, look up the result in the first table, using the result of the units die as the row number.

Units	Succeeded	Failed	Bad failure – 00, or fail by more than 15%
0	1 valuable	Nothing	Beaten up – lose d30 + 60% of your hit points.
1	2 valuable	Nothing	Steal a cursed item. 1. a dagger -1, 2. a coin which devours others at the rate of d10gp per day, 3. a gem of stupidity (-1d4 INT or WIS), 4. a purse of asceticism (save vs spells or refuse to accept money), 5. gem of crippling (lose 1d4 STR or DEX), 6. unlucky charm (-1 to all saves).
2	1 valuable 1 mundane	Nothing	The city guards get their hands on you. You can bribe your way out with d100gp, if you have money on you, or the thieves' guild will bail you out for 50 + 2d100gp – they expect the money back.
3	2 mundane	Nothing	Beaten up and robbed – lose d30 + 60% of your hit points, plus anything vaguely useful or valuable you have on you is taken.
4	1 mundane 1 odd	Nothing	You think you've gotten away with it, but you stole something important and your target really wants their loot back. Mercenaries are hired to track you down.
5	1 valuable 1 mundane	Nothing	A trapped coin purse, who'd have thought? When you get your prize away and open it you find: 1. poison gas!, 2. sleep gas, 3. explosive dye, 4. a man-trap just right for prying hands, 5. a geas upon you, 6. a summoned guardian who is none too pleased to see you.
6	2 valuable 1 odd	Nothing	You're grabbed by a crowd of locals and forced into some humiliating form of punishment: 1. pillories, 2. tarred and feathered, 3. stripped naked and chased through the streets, 4. thrown in a sewer.
7	1 valuable 2 mundane	1 mundane	Word of your ineptitude gets to the thieves' guild and you are ridiculed by your peers. If you're not a member of the guild you may be in trouble.
8	3 mundane	1 mundane	Chased and narrowly escape – lose 1d6hp (cannot be fatal) and 1d6 CON. CON recovers at a rate of one point per day of rest.
9	1 valuable	1 odd	Chased and narrowly escape, but injure yourself in your haste. You lose 1d6 STR or DEX (50% chance of each) plus 2d6hp (cannot be fatal). STR or DEX recover at a rate of one point per day of rest.
